

Film review Draft by: Alexa Martin

Number Unknown: The high school catfish

Director: Skye Borgman TV rating MA

How long is the movie: 1h and 34m

This documentary received 4 out of five stars.

Little did this teenage girl know the person she thought she could trust with her life was actually her biggest hater. This whole situation started when this teenage girl got a random text one day, but the person behind all these texts is someone you will never guess. I liked what the director did in this film because she had the actual victims talk through the whole thing and then at the end you find out the one behind all of this was talking to you this whole time that's how crazy this story is, and it's crazy to think it happen in real life because you never think something like this would ever happen. Let alone a teenage girl because the things said in these text messages were so out there, "they would make a 45-year-old man blush." I would recommend this film to young adults or older teens because this movie is rated MA, and there is a reason because it contains strong situations that are meant for older teens and young adults.

Trailer for film

Unknown Number: The High School Catfish Review

Publication modeled